This report summarizes the Office of General Counsel’s (OGC) work during FY 22-23. It reflects the office’s efforts to support many of the strategic goals of the Wolfpack 2030: Powering the Extraordinary Strategic Plan, and also summarizes significant matters that reflect the Office of General Counsel’s collective contributions to the mission of the University.

I. Overview and Overall Highlights and Accomplishments for FY 22-23

This has been another busy and very productive year for the Office of General Counsel. We obtained significant and positive results for our clients in legal matters. We continue to maintain strong partnerships with our campus clients, and the attorneys and staff have the opportunity to engage in meaningful, challenging work. OGC attorneys and staff make a collective effort to stay on top of the trends and focus of the higher education industry, both in the state of North Carolina but also nationwide. We have filled our University Compliance and Ethics Officer position as well as a newly created position, Director of Legal Operations and Policy and Compliance Administration.

OGC is leading the ongoing comprehensive PRR review process. We remain guided by the university’s land-grant mission, and our focus as an office and in our individual practices continues to be on providing mission-oriented advice and counsel.

OGC continues to use the matter management software program Clio. OGC also now uses two additional software products. NextRequest is an online portal to manage requests and responses for public records. Relativity is an e-discovery online platform that allows for our attorneys to handle, process, and respond to discovery and other litigation requests in a timely and efficient manner.

Significant Supreme Court Decision: SFFA v. Harvard and SFFA v. UNC

On June 29, 2023, the U.S. Supreme Court issued its decision in Students for Fair Admissions v. UNC and Students for Fair Admissions v. Harvard. The decision substantively overruled the Court’s prior precedent and substantially changed the law on the use of race (and possibly other protected classes) in admissions. The critical impact of the decision is that race cannot be used as a factor in admissions decisions. The impact of the decision may also extend to financial aid and scholarship programs and recruitment programs.
To prepare for the potential impact of the decision, OGC (Allison Newhart, Betsy Lanzen, and Leslie Mize, assisted by others on the team) spent the past year leading a group of stakeholders in collecting information and discussing the possible impact with the current undergraduate and graduate admissions processes. OGC is now working closely with the Provost’s Office and all admissions officers to understand the impact of the decision and ensure admissions processes are compliant.

IV. Additional Functions of OGC

The Office of General Counsel is the university’s legal representative, and is responsible for providing all legal services to the University, senior leadership, Board of Trustees, and other members of the University community. Consistent with the University’s mission and in furtherance of the objective of organizational excellence, the Office of General Counsel also has additional functions and responsibilities within the University. These are listed as follows:

A. Training

OGC presents specialized training to many campus units. This training has included topics such as records retention and disposition, FERPA, faculty grievances and mediation, information security, minors on campus, privacy in cyberspace, political activities, computer use as well as first amendment, freedom of speech and the Clery Act to name a few.

B. Policies, Regulations and Rules

Policies, Regulations and Rules (“PRR”s) are the internal “law” of the university. They reflect regulatory and institutional requirements, clarify responsibilities, and set expectations for conducting University operations. PRRs are made available through the University’s PRR website which is managed by OGC. OGC helps facilitate the review and revision of the University’s PRRs, in collaboration with the offices and units having responsibility and authority over the PRR. This past year, as part of implementing NC State’s strategic plan “Wolfpack 2030: Powering the Extraordinary”, OGC initiated a comprehensive review of all PRRs. The review began in summer 2022.
The review and revision process is underway and will continue next year. To date, as a result of this process, a total of 123 PRRs have been reviewed this past year. Of those reviewed, 92 PRRs were either revised, repealed, or newly created. 5 PRRs were created, 67 were revised (15 non-substantive revisions, 52 substantive revisions) and 20 were repealed. The number of PRRs reviewed over the past year reflects a dramatic increase of over 700% reviewed from the previous year (21-22'). OGC plans to continue advancing the PRR review process over the summer and into the fall. As shown below, the Office of Finance & Administration ("OFA") reviewed the most PRRs this past year (65), followed by the Graduate School and Office of Research and Innovation (both with 19). Changes to the PRR process will also likely be considered.

C. Public Records

As a state agency, NC State University is subject to the Public Records Act. Another key function of OGC is the advice and management of the University's responses to requests for public records. Lynda Mottershead is the University's Public Records Officer. This year Lynda provided guidance regarding revisions to the Public Records section of the Computer Use Regulation (REG 08.00.02) as well as revisions to the UPD’s Policy Report Records Management Policy. For fiscal year 22-23 (as of June 1, 2023), the University received over 308 public records requests and more than 12 subpoenas. In addition, REG 01.25.12--University Record Retention and Disposition Regulation, was revised to reflect changes imposed by the North Carolina Department of Natural and Cultural Resources (NCDNCR).
D. Contracts/Agreements Review

OGC continues to play a significant role in reviewing and providing guidance on University contracts and agreements. OGC attorneys review all manner of agreements in support of Procurement & Business Services, Advancement Services, University Real Estate and Development, the Provost’s Office, Athletics, Technology Transfer and Sponsored Research, Employment/Personnel Matters, Global Engagement, SPARCS, Facilities, Fraternity and Sorority Life, the Office of Research Commercialization, the Endowment Fund, various affiliated foundations and other associated entities, and service agreements performed by our centers, institutes, and College and non-College service centers. Given the varying degrees of contract and agreement consultation it is difficult to obtain a precise number but OGC estimates that it has collectively reviewed 1,000+ contracts in the 2022-2023 fiscal year. The chart below provides a breakdown of contracts by transaction type.

E. Tort Claims/State Property Incident Reports

In accordance with state law, OGC handles tort claims and state property incident reports involving claims of damage or injury on University property. OGC works closely with the Director of Insurance and Risk Management and the NC Department of Justice. This year OGC processed 9 tort claims, 1 motor vehicle complaint. No state property incidents were reported.
F. Compliance and Enterprise Risk Management

OGC is responsible for the University’s Compliance and Integrity Program and Enterprise Risk Management (ERM) Initiative. Due to staff turnover, the University Compliance and Ethics Officer (UCEO) position has been vacant much of this fiscal year. However, Shawn Troxler has served in the role of the Compliance and Ethics Officer on an interim basis. Recruitment for the Compliance and Ethics Officer position took place during spring semester and we are pleased to welcome Anna Szamosi into the position as of June 14, 2023. The following are some of the critical accomplishments from this year.
